to Lisa,

 (this morning)

We hope you are having a spectacular day! The team met yesterday to go over some of the requirements and we realized that it was not specified whether you wanted the product for Android or iOS (for iPads). We could do both, if that's what you wanted, but it would seriously limit what we can create because we would basically be developing everything twice. So we would suggest that you pick one operating system for now. We just need to know which one you would prefer. The entire development team has experience developing for both Android and iOS so it does not make a difference to us.

Let us know what you decide!

Thanks,

Kat

Kat,

Thanks for emailing me about this! I definitely want to go with both options eventually, but for now I'd rather have more features. With that being said, I think our best option is to go with iOS. I talked this over with a few people and we concluded that this would be best for the company.

Let me know if you need anything else!
